The Echo Before Dawn

#DrugUse#TeenageFriendship#SchoolSetting#BrokenFamilies#LongingForLoveAndAcceptance

Let me go back ... to the day when everything could still change.

A song connects two boys who couldn't be more different. Amidst their turbulent, grief-stricken teenage years, they become inseparable. But then drugs come into play and their lives spiral out of control ... In her work, Lang-Chi delicately captures the tragic fate of two young souls. Besides drug abuse, she also addresses important social issues such as dysfunctional families and school bullying. For this, she received the 16th Golden Comic Awards in 2025, Taiwan's most prestigious comic book prize.

Small House Human Atlas

#Work Culture #Horror Thriller #Literary Adaptation

Can the pursuit of wealth and status ever bring true freedom?

Based on Terao Tetsuya's essay collection OVERFITTING, this adaptation transforms the stories from the vaunted world of Silicon Valley into seven beautifully bizarre short comics.

There's the stingy coworker who shamelessly milks even the smallest employee bonus; the self-made man who worked his way up from the village to the bourgeoisie yet lost all empathy along the way; the career woman who compulsively berates every newcomer; and a bunch of engineers completely spoiled by their elite education. With an oddly unique yet realistic style, the artist creates frighteningly authentic ghost stories from the workplace.

You'll never guess
what's coming next in this morbid fun ride!

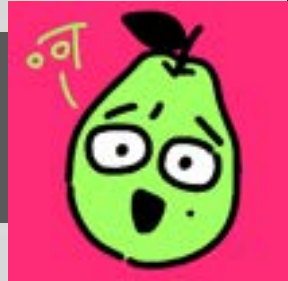

The attention-seeking influencer Brain Boy and his assistant and professional groupie Bai stumble into zombie-infested territory and discover superstar Mr. J... who transforms into an undead monster right before their eyes!

While Brain Boy wants to immediately point the camera at Mr. J and go viral, Bai wants to protect her idol at all costs. Amidst this conflict of interests, the two humans embark on a completely absurd but very amusing vlogging trip with their zombie companion, but no well-thought-out plan lasts long. For clicks and their survival, this insane livestream must go on!

"Crazy! Are we now managers of this (zombie) celebrity?"

The Projected Girl From The Underground Street Vol.1

#Bizarre#UndergroundRuins#VirtualReality#SecretCrushComesBackToLife

My secret crush died unexpectedly.
Years later, we meet again—but she has become a virtual projection ...

Built on ruins, the underground shopping mall "Silver Valley" is known for its curious goods and urban legends. Next to extraterrestrial artifacts, hyper-realistic VR projections, and secret passages leading to unknown grounds, there is also a nameless pool where you might encounter your soul mate—"She stood right in front of my eyes. We talked for a long time and met often, but... will I ever be able to touch her again?"

Local Heroes: Taiwan New Wave Cinema Vol.3

#TaiwanNewCinema#FilmmakingCraft#HouHsiao-hsien#EdwardYang#WuNien-jen
#HsiaoYeh#1980s

Documenting the 1980s: Forty Years of the Taiwan New Wave Cinema

This work is a tribute by artist Sean Chuang to the "Taiwan New Wave Cinema" movement of the 1980s. In a very cinematic visual language, the reader follows filmmakers such as Hou Hsiao-hsien, Edward Yang, and Wu Nien-jen, who broke with old traditions and challenged the authoritarian system.

Instead of putting the old masters on a pedestal, the artist portrays them as ordinary people through the lens of their craft, highlighting their perseverance and close collaboration amid a flood of adversity.

This comic is not only a chronicle of a cinematic movement, but also a hymn to all those who unwaveringly pursue their ideals.

Why We Love It

- ★ The history of Taiwanese cinema in comic form!
- ★ Captures the story of Taiwan's filmmaking pioneers, who, for all these years, remained true to their passion.

That night, the delegation waved small national flags, danced and sang Taiwanese songs on their way back.

On September 16, 1989, they returned to Taiwan and held a press conference about the Golden Lion Award.

Chiu Fu-sheng apologized: "Deleting the section beforehand was my personal decision." Hou Hsiao-hsien, Chiu Fu-sheng and Tsai Sung-lin of Scholar Multimedia decided to resubmit the complete version for review.

On October 18, 1989, "A City of Sadness," with its international accolades and the taboo topic of the February 28 Incident, earned an astonishing NT$5 million on its opening day, defeating "box office darling" Kevin Chu and becoming the year's highest-grossing film.

DAY OFF SEASON 2

#BL#AgeGap#Workplace

A sunny (and sometimes slightly cloudy) office romance to help you forget about your busy work life!

How does a middle-aged career man who likes to be in control deal with a problem that threatens to throw both his professional and private life off balance?

In the spin-off to the Boys' Love hit "Day Off", the story follows the romance between a company's vice president and his younger intern. Told at a casual pace, it captures modern ideals of the "perfect relationship" while exploring how successful, single adults rediscover love and intimacy.

Delinquent's Guide to the South Airport Hood

#Community#ElderlyLivingAlone#Troublemaker#LaughterAndTears

Not only does he change the community,
but also himself ...

Inspired by true events in Taiwan: Since 2001, Fang He-sheng has been promoting the "Meals for the Elderly" initiative, transforming food donations into delicious meals for seniors and disadvantaged families in his community. A young troublemaker is sent to do community service in South Airport Hood and slowly discovers that this place is very different from what he expected.

With lots of humor, this comic addresses the problems of elderly people living alone and the challenges faced by social workers. It is a deeply moving story that will make you cry bittersweet tears and heal you with hearty laughter.

#TrueCrime#Psychology#CrimeAnalysis#SocialRealism#InstitutionalIgnorance
 #DepthsOfHumanNature#DreamTeam

These crimes are closer to us than we might think—the killer could be a neighbor, a coworker, or even the familiar cleaning lady ...

A dead body is found under the bed of a remote hotel. The case appears to be linked to a murder that took place several years ago. Is this sheer coincidence or a coldly calculated plan?

Criminal psychologist Dr. Ye Ru-hsia is convinced that every abnormal action stems from a logical pattern. His job is to unravel twisted motives and prevent future tragedies. At the intersection of theoretical psychology and reality, Ye Ru-hsia and his partner Lin Shou-zheng delve deeper and deeper into the mystery, uncovering the darkest sides of human nature as well as long-buried police secrets.

- ★ "Are those monsters truly monsters?"
- ★ Dangerous Attraction
- ★ A beautiful yet cruel girls love story in a medieval setting

I'm so tired...

What's wrong?

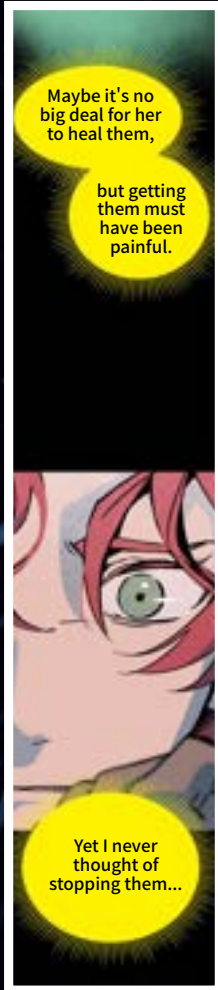

Why do you want to shower now?

How will you dry your hair? You shouldn't catch a cold out here in the wild!

Oh please, let me forget about that!

Wait,

those scars cover her entire body.

Maybe it's no big deal for her to heal them,

but getting them must have been painful.

Yet I never thought of stopping them...

"A human turned into an immortal vampire"

That's what humans must have thought because of their own ignorance.

It's fine, let go.

I don't feel anything.

Screw those "immortal vampires" !

I only bring trouble and pain to the people by my side.

That's not what I want!

A name as warm as the sun!

But miss, shouldn't you be afraid of the sun?

My mom said you're a vampire.

Shush!

Kids sure like to talk, hahaha!

I'm sorry. I know you're not really a vampire.

But it's easier for kids to understand.

No worries! I also often introduce myself as a vampire, to keep things simple.

The Nature Chef

#TaiwanIndigenousPeople#CulturalExchange#Cooking#SoulFood

Indigenous delicacies blessed by ancestral spirits + Japanese cuisine steeped in nostalgia

During World War II, Panay, a girl from the Amis tribe, works for a Japanese family who moved to Hualien at Taiwan's east coast to escape the war. During those years of scarcity, she blends local ingredients with tribal traditions to recreate Japanese dishes. These delicious flavors not only bring back memories, but also ease the homesickness of her Japanese employers.

During a daring search for ingredients by the sea, Panay meets Japanese police officer Shinsuke. A strange feeling, unlike any she had ever known, quietly starts to bloom inside her ...

Why We Love It

- ★ Shows how the Amis tribe's cuisine is based on harmony with the land they live in.
- ★ A comforting story about everyday moments of warmth amid a turbulent time of war

Sikawasay* is amazing.

She can communicate with spirits and our ancestors.

*Sikawasay: An Amis term meaning "one who carries a spirit."

She leads the tribe's ceremonies and treats everyone's illnesses.

Ina* was a gentle soul who loved us very much.

Vai* taught Runi and me many things.

*Ina: Amis for mother or aunt.

*Vai: Amis for grandmother or elder woman.

However...

Runi, I and all the others cherished and respected Vai very much. We were like family.

Steaming

Put the rice into a special basket and steam it over water.

Hakhak is our kind of glutinous rice. We Amis people always prepare some for festivals.

This time I added voga to the hakhak, to make them sweeter and more filling.

I also wrap the rice in apalo leaves,

this way it will take over their aromatic smell!

Wait, leaves?

Ask next time, before you just eat her stuff.
